

SIX RIVERS REGIONAL LAND CONSERVANCY

Six Rivers Regional Land Conservancy works with both public and private landowners to protect land through conservation easements and other methods. We follow up by carefully managing the land we protect, ensuring that our conservation work is not only at the best professional level but that it contributes to the quality of the communities we serve. Our educational programs and stewardship days help children and adults learn to be better stewards of the land they care about.

All of these efforts are conducted within the framework of a green infrastructure vision that is developed in collaboration with the communities where we work. Green infrastructure is defined as a system of interconnected open space that preserves natural systems and water quality and provides benefit to human populations.

We conserve and care for land in Oakland, Macomb, Lapeer and Genesee Counties and within the watersheds of the Huron, Flint, Shiawassee, Rouge, Belle and Clinton Rivers. We currently conserve over 1,000 acres which includes nature preserves, conservation easements and stewardship assistance projects.

Education and Communication: Living Together in Harmony with Nature

Land preservation is not just about placing legal restrictions on important natural areas. At the Conservancy, stewardship education is a central part of our work because we believe that true preservation happens when we strengthen the relationships between people and land and when we invest in children and their relationship with nature. All people benefit from healthy land and a connection to nature; therefore as we educate and communicate, we strive to truly understand the diversity of our constituency and be inclusive and welcoming to all groups and individuals.
